PROFESSIONALIZATION OF HEALTH SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE- MOMBASA

The Chairman Mr. John Karani, MBS (Right) following proceedings during the Professionalization of Health Supply Chain Management Conference in Mombasa

The Professionalization of Health Supply Chain Management Conference brought together key players from across the health sector to address the critical role of supply chain management in improving healthcare delivery. The conference was opened by @Dr. Tom Menge, Director of the Division of Health Products and Technologies (DHPT), representing Dr. Harry Kimtai, CBS, Principal Secretary, State Department of Medical Services.

The conference attracted over 80 stakeholders, including representatives from County Governments, Health NGOs, private sector organizations, and supply chain experts, all of whom were keen to contribute towards strengthening Kenya's healthcare system through the lens of supply chain management. Their participation underscored the diverse and multi-sectoral nature of health supply chains, which involve everything from procurement and distribution to logistics and monitoring of pharmaceuticals, medical equipment, and health technologies.

Dr. Tom Menge, emphasized the need for heightened professionalism and capacity-building within health supply chains, especially in a rapidly evolving healthcare landscape. He pointed out that streamlined, well-coordinated systems are vital for enhancing service delivery at both national and county levels.

A panel discussion during the the Proffesionalization of Health Supply Chain Management Conference held in Mombasa

One of the standout sessions during the conference was a joint presentation by Dr. Waqo Dulacha Ejersa, CEO of the Kenya Medical Supplies Authority (KEMSA), and Dr. Gloria Kigen, Head of Supply Chain at Mission for Essential Drugs and Supplies (MEDS). Their discussion on the Nexus Between Pharmaceutical Systems and Supply Chain Management highlighted the intrinsic link between pharmaceutical governance and efficient supply chain operations. Both leaders stressed that strengthening this nexus was key to ensuring that health commodities reached the end-user in a timely and cost-effective manner, particularly in rural and underserved areas.

Throughout the conference, participants explored a range of topics, including emerging trends in supply chain technology, public-private partnerships, and the integration of county health supply systems into the national framework. The collaborative nature of the event reinforced the shared responsibility across sectors to build resilient health supply chains that can withstand challenges such as pandemics, budget constraints, and logistical hurdles.

By fostering an environment for open dialogue and knowledge-sharing, the Professionalization of Health Supply Chain Management Conference has set the stage for actionable reforms and innovations that will continue to shape the future of health supply chains in Kenya and beyond.

Supply Chain Quote of the Week

Supply chains are the lifeblood of your company. Keep them healthy, and your business will thrive.

PROCUREMENT TRAINING FOR COMMITTEES, CECs, AND USER DEPARTMENTS

Participants following through a session during the procurement training for Committees, CECs, and User Departments on 27th September 2024 in Naivasha

The Procurement Training for Committees, CECs, and User Departments successfully concluded today, 27th September 2024, in Naivasha after an intensive five-day session aimed at strengthening procurement processes across counties. Attendance comprised of County Executive Committee Members (CECs), procurement committees, and other key stakeholders, focused on building capacity to ensure more efficient, transparent, and ethical procurement practices within county governments and public institutions.

The training covered a comprehensive range of procurement topics, including the latest procurement regulations, effective supplier management, and the importance of ethical conduct throughout the procurement lifecycle. This focus was designed to equip participants with the strategic knowledge needed to streamline procurement processes, reduce wastage, and enhance accountability in public spending.

County executives and department heads from various sectors, including health, infrastructure, and education, were among the participants. The cross-sector representation fostered a collaborative environment where participants shared best practices and discussed the unique challenges they face in their respective areas. The training emphasized the critical role of procurement in service delivery, highlighting that efficient procurement systems are integral to the timely execution of county projects and the overall achievement of development goals.

One of the key sessions of the training was dedicated to procurement regulations and compliance, ensuring that county officials are up to date with the latest legal frameworks governing procurement in Kenya. This session reinforced the importance of adhering to the Public Procurement and Asset Disposal Act to promote fairness, competition, and value for money in the awarding of contracts and management of suppliers.

Another core area of focus was supplier management, with participants learning how to establish effective supplier relationships, improve contract management, and implement systems for monitoring supplier performance. By improving supplier engagement and oversight, county governments can minimize delays, ensure quality deliveries, and foster long-term partnerships that benefit both the public sector and the private businesses involved.

A significant aspect of the training centered on ethical practices in procurement. Participants were trained on how to identify and mitigate risks related to corruption, conflict of interest, and fraud in procurement processes. The sessions emphasized the need for transparency and accountability in procurement activities, as well as the role of internal controls and audit mechanisms in safeguarding public resources.

This 5-day procurement training underscored the commitment of county governments and stakeholders to strengthen governance and accountability in public procurement, setting a foundation for more effective and responsible resource management moving forward.

Participants expressed confidence in their ability to implement the knowledge gained to transform procurement practices in their respective counties. By enhancing the efficiency, transparency, and ethical standards of procurement, counties will be better positioned to deliver quality services to citizens, maximize the impact of public funds, and drive sustainable development at the local level.

KISM ROLLS OUT DEVELOPMENT OF THE STRATEGIC PLAN 2025-2029

KISM Council's Strategy Committee led by CM Jeremiah Nthusi during the 2025-2029 Strategic Planning retreat in Naivasha

Earlier this week, the Kenya Institute of Supplies Management (KISM) Council's Strategy Committee and the management team convened in Naivasha for a strategic planning retreat, marking the launch of the development of KISM's Strategic Plan for the 2025–2029 period. Led by CM Jeremiah Nthusi, OGW, Chairperson of the Strategy Committee, the retreat focused on creating a comprehensive roadmap to strengthen the supply chain management profession and elevate its impact on Kenya's economy.

In his remarks, Mr. Nthusi emphasized that supply chain management is the cornerstone of economic performance, influencing everything from cost efficiency to customer satisfaction. The new Strategic Plan will prioritize empowering supply chain professionals with the skills and knowledge they need to excel in their roles. This includes implementing robust training programs, strengthening the licensing process, and upholding regulatory integrity to ensure that professionals maintain the highest standards of practice.

“Collaboration will be key to achieving our objectives. We will work closely with KISM members, stakeholders, and regulatory bodies to create a dynamic ecosystem that fosters growth and innovation,” Mr. Nthusi stated. He called on all stakeholders in the supply chain practice to harness collective strengths to tackle existing challenges and seize new opportunities for advancement in the profession.

The Strategic Plan 2025–2029 will focus on critical areas such as enhancing member services, developing continuous professional development (CPD) initiatives, improving regulatory frameworks, and promoting ethical standards. The plan also seeks to align with global best practices, ensuring that Kenya remains a leader in supply chain management across the region.

Stay engaged with the development of the Strategic Plan 2025–2029. As the process unfolds, we encourage all members to contribute their ideas and insights to shape the future of supply chain management in Kenya and beyond.

APPROVAL OF THE CONTINUOUS PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT GUIDELINES AND THE COURT RULING JUDGMENT IN CASE No. HCJR/E138/2023

The Supplies Practitioners Management (Continuous Professional Development Programmes) Guidelines, 2024, officially gazetted via Legal Notice No. 118 of 2024 on 19th July, 2024, and laid before the National Assembly on 1st August, 2024, have now been approved and acceded to. These guidelines mark a significant step forward in reinforcing the ongoing implementation of the Continuous Professional Development (CPD) policy for supply chain practitioners in Kenya.

The guidelines emphasize the need for practitioners to engage in regular, structured development programs to remain in good standing with KISM. This involves participating in training sessions, workshops, and other learning activities designed to enhance skills and knowledge, in line with evolving industry standards and regulations.

KISM will play a central role in monitoring compliance with these guidelines, offering accredited CPD programs, and ensuring that practitioners have access to the resources needed to fulfill their obligations.

The judgment in Case Number HCJR/E138/2023 also upholds

the validity and enforceability of the CPD guidelines, further supporting the regulatory framework established to ensure continuous professional advancement in supply chain management.

It is essential for all practitioners to review these guidelines thoroughly and ensure their compliance to maintain their membership in good standing with the Institute. Practitioners are encouraged to regularly participate in CPD activities and stay informed of any updates to the guidelines or related regulatory requirements. CERTIFIED PROCUREMENT AND SUPPLY PROFESSIONAL OF KENYA (CPSP-K)

The adoption of the Certified Procurement and Supply Professional of Kenya (CPSP-K) qualification as the standard for membership admission into the Kenya Institute of Supplies Management (KISM) reflects the institute's strong commitment to promoting professionalism and competency within the procurement and supply chain management sector.

By establishing high entry standards for new members, KISM is ensuring that individuals who join its ranks possess the essential skills, knowledge, and ethical values required to thrive in their roles. This move will not only elevate the professional standards within the field but also contribute to the overall growth and recognition of supply chain management (SCM) as a critical profession in Kenya and internationally.

This directive applies to new members only. Individuals who seek registration with KISM after 1st January 2025 will be required to possess the CPSP-K qualification. However, existing KISM members who are registered as of 31st December 2024 will not be subject to this requirement, ensuring that the directive is forward-looking and does not retroactively affect current members.

Enroll now in the CPSP-K and CIPS Level 4 -6 programs offered by the Kenya College of Supply Chain Management (KSCSM). Online classes for the Sept – October 2024 intake are open.
